Welcome to Monaco

Dear Sir, Madam,

I am pleased to welcome you to Monaco for this major Monaco-ITER event on fusion energy, MIIFED 2013.

The three days of the conference will allow us to take stock of what has been - and what will be - achieved by one of the most exciting scientific and technological projects on Earth.

ITER is to fusion energy what the Apollo project was to landing on the Moon: the culmination of decades of efforts for one of the most exciting, most meaningful ventures in human history.

ITER is now well on its way: construction is progressing rapidly in Saint Paul-lez-Durance and the manufacture of components has begun in the 35 countries that are participating in this ambitious scientific experiment, which is also an unprecedented international collaboration.

It is the right time to show and share what we have learned together and what we are achieving. And also time to look to the future. The aim of MIIFED 2013 is to develop further scientific cooperation and technology transfers and also to prepare the ground for the future fusion reactors. MIIFED 2013 also aims to encourage synergies between energy-related research and technology developments.

I would like to thank His Serene Highness Prince Albert II for his constant support of the ITER Project and his enduring generosity, in particular for the Monaco fellowships and the MIIFED conferences.

I hope your participation in MIIFED 2013 will be both interesting and productive, and look forward to meeting you.

Osamu Motojima

Director-General, ITER Organization

Conference Objectives

The conference will present the latest progress of the ITER project. The seven ITER members (China, Europe, India, Japan, Korea, Russia and the USA) are currently building fusion reactor ever in Saint Paul-lez-Durance, France. The first experiments are scheduled for 2020. This truly international MIFED event will also present major scientific and technological developments in the field of fusion and energy worldwide.

The aim is to encourage synergies between energy-related research and technology developments. Together with the exhibition, the different conference sessions will facilitate learning, networking and partnering with other research actors.

The event will also review project feedback so far with a view to stimulating further involvement and networking, in particular among industry representatives and researchers from the seven ITER Members.
